LOAN WILL GO OVER TOP

HIT 'EM AGAIN CLUB GETS INTO THE PUSH.

Over $100,000 Raised in a Short Time in Gettysburg—Same Work Going On in County.

The hustling on the Fourth Liberty Loan is prodigious these days. The room is a busy spot. The quota for the county must go over the top. The "flu" and other conditions have interfered with the campaign. Several days are left and over the top it must go.

The feeling of assurance that the trick will be done is to be gathered from a number of circumstances. The Liberty Loan Committee have sent out over the county large circulars, similar to the fifth page of the Compiler this week telling of the fifteen Adams county boys who have made the supreme sacrifice.

Then the banks of the county have agreed to loan all the money needed to buy the bonds at not more than 4-1-2 per cent, which means that any citizen can loan to the government the credit of his name for an actual outlay of $2.50 per thousand. The interest on $1000 borrowed of any bank at 4-1-2 per cent would be $45. The security for the loan would be the holding of the bond by the Bank. The coupons for the year would raise $250 toward paying the Bank interest and the individual backing the government would be out $250 per thousand with plenty of good chances to make this up. This offer of the Banks to loan has stimulated buying bonds on borrowed money.

The Hit 'Em Again Club went at the Fourth Liberty Loan just as described, catch as catch can, hit 'em again, old way, just so the bonds came tumbling in. The club met in the Court House on Thursday evening and listened to splendid talks by Dr. W. A. Granville, Rev. Fr. Boyle, Frank Eberhart, John D. Keita, J. L. Williams and others, and then got down to business with the result in a short time over $100,000 was raised. The subscriptions were to be in addition to any previous subscriptions and agreeing to become members of the club with not less than $1000 subscriptions, the Banks loaning money needed to complete the same. The following is list of members and subscription:

$8,000, Frank Eberhart.

"Gasless Sunday" Recalled.

The Fuel Administration withdrew on Thursday the "gasless Sunday" request and announced that an improvement in the gasoline export situation makes it unnecessary to replace the gasless Sunday program with any kind of gasoline ration. However, at the end of two weeks checks are found too low the regulation may be put on again. Approximately 1,000,000 barrels of gas have been saved in the seven gasless Sundays.

GEO. J. BUSHMAN MURDERED.

Robbery is Believed to Have Instigated the Killing.

George J. Bushman, of Gettysburg, was foully murdered, being shot through the head, his body, robbed of money, and watch and hidden in weeds along the Susquehanna River. The last seen of Geo. J. Bushman in this place was Wednesday evening after six o'clock, when he was noticed going out the State road in his big car, headed for Harrisburg, having as passengers a man and a woman, whose identity has not yet been established.

The body of Mr. Bushman was found Thursday morning by G. H. Eisenhower, an employee of the State Highway Department, at about eight o'clock in the morning. It was lying among the weeds near the river bank near the Coxestown Hotel. Coroner Eickinger was immediately summoned and the body was taken to the undertaking parlors of C. H. Maik and there was a bullet wound just above the left ear.

A number of receipts and bills including several from the Gettysburg Ice and Storage Company and a Willard Storage Battery service made out in the name of George J. Bushman were found in the man's pockets and helped to establish his identity. Some money and cards were found in a pocketbook. In addition there was a clipping from a Gettysburg paper relative to new scales of prices for battlefield guides at the Gettysburg National Park.

The man wore a pair of black trousers with brown stripes, a blue coat and vest, a blue tie with pin stripes and a small gold tie pin, a gray and black checked cap, and a black muffer around his neck. He wore a knitted sweater and a brown overcoat.

Stephen Gruber who lives near the scene of the accident, says that he saw an automobile stop near the point between 11 and 12 o'clock last night. He paid no attention to the happening until this morning when Eisenhower found the body. Since it was covered with a blanket it is believed the body was brought to the spot where it was found. In corroboration of Gruber's story, Eisenhower says he saw tracks where the automobile drew up. The car evidently had small tires according to the tracks it was declared.

These facts would show that the body was not taken to the place where found in the Bushman car. It is known here that Mr. Bushman frequently carried a good sized roll of money in his clothes. The amount of money found upon the body and the absence of the watch lead to the conclusion that Mr. Bushman was murdered in order to rob the man. The theory has been advanced that after reaching Harrisburg with his passengers and being paid, he may have been seen by thugs to add the money to a roll in his pocket and the murder and robbery was planned.

Mr. Bushman was about 35 years of age and leaves a wife, a son and daughter, Clarence Bushman, in the army, and Mrs. Margaret Holder who is with her husband, an instructor at a training camp in the South.

Overseas Xmas Boxes.

The War and Post Office Departments and the American Red Cross have made an arrangement by which every man in the army overseas may receive a Christmas Parcel from his family or friends. The amount of shipping space which can be set aside for the transportation of these parcels will permit the sending of but one parcel to each man.

Each soldier overseas will be provided with one Christmas Parcel label. This label will be forwarded by him to the person in the United States from whom he wishes to receive his Christmas package. Packages that do not bear this label will not be accepted by the Red Cross for delivery to the Post Office authorities. Labels that are lost will not be duplicated.

Christmas Parcels must be placed in standard cardboard boxes 3 in. x 4 in. x 9 in. in size. These boxes will be provided to holders of labels by the American Red Cross. They may be obtained at Red Cross Chapters or Branches after November 1st.

No message or writing of any kind will be allowed to go in the boxes. When the boxes are packed, but unwrapped, they must not weigh more than 2 lbs. 15 ozs. If the parcel is over weight, some article must be removed.

No Christmas Parcel will be accepted by the Red Cross for shipment after November 20. Keep this fact in mind when planning a Merry Christmas for the boys "Over There."

On receiving one of these Christmas Parcel labels, it should be presented at the nearest chapter, or branch headquarters of the Red Cross, where the holder will receive a carton. By that time each Red Cross branch will have its allotment of boxes based on the number of soldiers in service overseas from that community.

These boxes may be filled with any combination of articles, except those on the list barred by the postal authorities.

1. All spirituous, vinous, malted, fermented or other intoxicating liquors.
2. All kinds of poison and all articles and composition containing poison.
3. Explosives of all kinds.
4. Inflammable materials, including friction matches.

The Things That Count

It is a long way from an orphan boy laboring on a farm to one of the principal supporters of President Wilson in Congress. But, Mr. Brodbeck accomplished this through hard work, and because he had, and has, the confidence of the people.

President Wilson has demonstrated remarkable ability, as well as his advisers in the manner in which the affairs of the country have been conducted.
It is highly important, that now when we are in shape to bring the War to an end, that President Wilson be supported in Congress by men who can be absolutely depended upon to stand by and who have had the experience as Members of Congress during these trying times, in order to act quickly and intelligently on such matters as may come up for consideration.

Mr. Brodbeck, your Representative in Congress, has not only stood by the President, which meant standing for the Country and for you, but has had the experience that places him in a position that matters coming to his attention can be acted on quickly, because he knows just what to do. He has taken up thousands of matters for the people of this district, and they have had prompt consideration.

It is wonderful what has been accomplished by our Government in a short time.
It put us in a position of assisting to bring to an end the World War that has meant the greatest loss of life and property that the world has ever known.

It's important to win the War, and you can do your part not only by saving food and fuel, in helping with your money, but, in keeping in Congress Mr. Brodbeck, who has stood for the Country, the President and for YOU. "It doesn't pay to swap horses in the middle of the stream."

They Got There In Time

They are in the fight with every muscle, every faculty of their minds, every drop of their American blood

You have read in the daily news the story of what one detachment of American artillerymen did on the Marne when their ammunition was running low.

Every shell in that caisson meant a speedier winning of the war—all the horses were killed—but the shells got there just the same. And they got there in time.

Where shall we draw the limit when we read what they are doing over there? Now is the time to put our full strength into it. Our strength, coupled with the power of our Allies, will win. Let us not delay even a few months.

Let us get there in time to hasten the victory—to save the lives of our sons.

How can any one of us, back here at home, set any limit to the help we ought to give—for victory? And we must get it there in time!

Drew Caissons When Horses Died.
There are many tales of heroism in the fighting in France. One concerns a number of boys, belonging to an artillery group, which as a result of constant fire found itself short of ammunition. The lads had volunteered to make a three-mile trip down the road, every inch of which was shell-swept, in order to bring back a fresh supply.

Before the return was completed the horses attached to their caisson wagon were all killed. That circumstance, however, failed to deter the Americans from laboriously dragging the wagon themselves.

UNCLE SAM'S ADVICE ON FLU

U. S. Public Health Service Issues Official Health Bulletin on Influenza.

LATEST WORD ON SUBJECT.

Epidemic Probably Not Spanish in Origin—Germ Still Unknown—People Should Guard Against "Droplet Infection"—Surgeon General Blue Makes Authoritative Statement.

Washington, D. C.—(Special).—Although King Alfonso of Spain was one of the victims of the influenza epidemic in 1893 and again this summer, Spanish authorities repudiate any claim to influenza as a "Spanish" disease. If the people of this country do not take care the epidemic will become so widespread throughout the United States that soon we shall hear the disease called "American" influenza.

In response to a request for definite information concerning Spanish influenza, Surgeon General Rupert Blue of the U. S. Public Health Service has authorized the following official interview:

What is Spanish Influenza? Is it something new? Does it come from Spain?

"The disease now occurring in this country and called 'Spanish Influenza' resembles a very contagious kind of 'cold,' accompanied by fever, pains in the head, eyes, ears, back or other parts of the body and a feeling of severe sickness. In most of the cases the symptoms disappear after three or four days, the patient then rapidly recovering. Some of the patients, however, develop pneumonia, or inflammation of the ear, or meningitis, and many of these complicated cases die. Whether this so-called 'Spanish' influenza is identical with the epidemics of influenza of earlier years is not yet known.

"Epidemics of influenza have visited this country since 1647. It is interesting to know that this first epidemic was brought here from Valencia, Spain. Since that time there have been numerous epidemics of the disease. In 1889 and 1890 an epidemic of influenza, starting somewhere in the Orient, spread first to Russia and thence over practically the entire civilized world. Three years later there was another flare-up of the disease.
Both times the epidemic spread widely over the United States.

"Although the present epidemic is called 'Spanish influenza,' there is no reason to believe that it originated in Spain. Some writers who have studied the question believe that the epidemic came from the Orient and they call attention to the fact that the Germans mention the disease as occurring along the eastern front in the summer and fall of 1917."

How can "Spanish influenza" be recognized?

"There is as yet no certain way in which a single case of 'Spanish influenza' can be recognized. On the other hand, recognition is easy where there is a group of cases. In contrast to the outbreaks of ordinary coughs and colds, which usually occur in the cold months, epidemics of influenza may occur at any season of the year.
Thus the present epidemic raged most intensely in Europe in May, June and July. Moreover, in the case of ordinary colds, the general symptoms (fever, pain, depression) are by no means as severe or as sudden in their onset as they are in influenza. Finally, ordinary colds do not spread through the community so rapidly or so extensively as does influenza."

"In most cases a person taken sick with influenza feels sick rather suddenly. He feels weak, has pains in the eyes, ears, head or back and may be sore all over. Many patients feel dizzy, some vomit. Most of the patients complain of feeling chilly, and with this comes a fever in which the temperature rises to 101 to 104. In most cases the pulse remains relatively slow."

"In appearance one is struck by the fact that the patient looks sick. His eyes and the inner side of his eyelids may be slightly 'bloodshot,' or 'red-dressed,' as the doctors say. There may be running from the nose, or there may be some cough. These signs of a cold may not be marked; nevertheless the patient looks and feels very sick."

"In addition to the appearance and the symptoms as already described, examination of the patient's blood may aid the physician in recognizing 'Spanish influenza,' for it has been found in this disease that the count of white corpuscles shows little or no increase above the normal. It is possible that the laboratory investigations now being made through the National Research Council and the United States Hygiene Laboratory will furnish a more certain way in which individual cases of this disease can be recognized."

What is the course of the disease?
Do people die of it?

"Ordinarily, the fever lasts from three to four days and the patient recovers. But while the proportion of deaths in the present epidemic has generally been low, in some places the outbreak has been severe and deaths have been numerous. When death occurs it is usually the result of a complication."

What causes the disease and how is it spread?

"Bacteriologists who have studied influenza epidemics in the past have found in many of the cases a very small rod-shaped germ called, after its discoverer, Pfeiffer's bacillus. In other cases of apparently the same kind of disease there were found pneumococci, the germs of lobar pneumonia. Still others have been caused by strepto-cocci, and by others germs with long names."

"No matter what particular kind of germ causes the epidemic, it is now believed that influenza is always spread from person to person, the germs being carried with the air along with the very small droplets of mucus, expelled by coughing or sneezing, forceful talking, and the like by one who already has the germs of the disease. They may also be carried about in the air in the form of dust coming from dried mucus, from coughing and sneezing, or from careless people who spit on the floor and on the sidewalk.
As in most other catching diseases, a person who has only a mild attack of the disease himself may give a very severe attack to others."

What should be done by those who catch the disease?

"It is very important that every person who becomes sick with influenza should go home at once and go to bed.
This will help keep away dangerous complications and will, at the same time, keep the patient from scattering the disease far and wide. It is highly desirable that no one be allowed to sleep in the same room with the patient. In fact, no one but the nurse should be allowed in the room."

"If there is cough and sputum or running of the eyes and nose, care should be taken that all such discharges are collected on bits of gauze or rag or paper napkins and burned.
If the patient complains of fever and headache, he should be given water to drink, a cold compress to the forehead and a light sponge. Only such medicine should be given as is prescribed by the doctor. It is foolish to ask the druggist to prescribe and may be dangerous to take the so-called 'safe, sure and harmless' remedies advertised by patent medicine manufacturers."

"If the patient is so situated that he can be attended only by some one who must also look after others in the family, it is advisable that such attendant wear a wrapper, apron or gown over the ordinary house clothes while in the sick room and slip this off when leaving to look after the others."

"Nurses and attendants will do well to guard against breathing in dangerous disease germs by wearing a simple fold of gauze or mask while near the patient."

Will a person who has had influenza before catch the disease again?

"It is well known that an attack of measles or scarlet fever or smallpox usually protects a person against another attack of the same disease. This appears not to be true of 'Spanish influenza.' According to newspaper reports the King of Spain suffered an attack of influenza during the epidemic thirty years ago, and was again stricken during the recent outbreak in Spain."

How can one guard against influenza?

"In guarding against disease of all kinds, it is important that the body be kept strong and able to fight off disease germs. This can be done by having a proper proportion of work, play and rest, by keeping the body well clothed, and by eating sufficient wholesome and properly selected food. In connection with diet, it is well to remember that milk is one of the best all-around foods obtainable for adults as well as children. So far as a disease like influenza is concerned, health authorities everywhere recognize the very close relation between its spread and overcrowded homes. While it is not always possible, especially in times like the present, to avoid such overcrowding, people should consider the health danger and make every effort to reduce the home overcrowding to a minimum. The value of fresh air through open windows cannot be over emphasized."

"When crowding is unavoidable, as in street cars, one should be careful to keep the face on the back of the head of the person in front of him, and to keep the air breathed out by the other person."

"It is especially important to beware of the person who has coughs or sneezes, or who is coughing or sneezing into his hand. It is also known that one should be wary of crowds and stuffy places as much as possible. Keep the face clean and wash it as well as possible. A face that is free of all cosmetics, make-up or dirt is much more likely to work off all particles of disease as much pure air as possible."

"In all health matters follow the advice of your doctor and obey the regulations of your local and state health officers."

"Cover up each cough and sneeze, If you don't you'll spread disease."

Some Gettysburg People Have Learned that Neglect is Dangerous.

The slightest symptom of kidney trouble is far too serious to be overlooked. It's the small, neglected troubles that so often lead to serious kidney ailments. That pain in the "small" of your back; that urinary irregularity; those headaches and dizzy spells; that weak, weary, worn-out feeling, may be nature's warning of kidney weakness. Why risk your life by neglecting these symptoms?

Watch the cause of the trouble while there yet is time—begin treating your kidneys at once with a tried and proven kidney remedy. No need to experiment—Doan's Kidney Pills have been successfully used in thousands of cases of kidney trouble for over 50 years. Doan's Kidney Pills misery and frequently I had dizzy spells and headaches. My kidneys acted irregularly, and this made me

FRANCE AND BELGIUM
GET AMERICAN SUGAR

Ninety-five per cent. of all refined sugar sent to the United States from the Allies is now being sent to France and Belgium during the last few months of this year.

Under the terms of the agreement between the United States and the Allies, the United States has agreed to send to France and Belgium 25 per cent. of its refined sugar production.

In each country a sugar was delegated by a special committee and organization. The entire amount to the Allies in these five months—23,701 tons, almost half of which was shipped in May—is only about one-half of 1 per cent. of our total annual consumption.

he grew a complete crop of brilliant luxuriant hair that he now prides on.
Old men and women have re-

Indian's Secret of Hair Growth

In a vast number of cases, when hair falls out, the roots are not dead, but remain imbedded in the scalp, alive, like seeds of barley, corn, or lettuce. The natural alkaline of the scalp, alcoholized hair tonics, etc., are of no avail in such cases. The Indian's secret nourishes the hair and stimulates the scalp.

More Toll Roads May Go.

According to a news story from Harrisburg, Joseph W. Hunter, first deputy highway commissioner, has been making inspection of toll roads for purchasing them with funds remaining in State Highway Department unexpended out of appropriations of last Legislature and also for purpose of ascertaining money that will be needed to put all remaining toll roads out of existence. He visited Adams county where a few short toll roads and one long one still collect toll, the Littlestown to Hanover pike, the Abbottstown to East Berlin pike, a short piece of the Waynesboro pike in Liberty township, and the Carlisle and Hanover turnpike, the worst of them all, running from the Cumberland county line, through York Springs, Hampton to Hanover. The last named toll road ought to be given to the State Highway Department. It has been in very bad condition, especially the northern end of it. It is to be hoped it will soon pass out of existence.

The Opening Show and Sale of Autumn Coats and Suits
Dresses Skirts Waists
Is Set for Monday, September 9th

The assortment is large. We planned it to meet every requirement of women who demand up-to-the minute styles combined with undeniable quality---who seek service rather than display. As such, ours is a thoroly representative stock, from which no worthy style-thought has been omitted.

Fortunately, makers with whom we have dealt for years were abundantly able to meet all our demands---they were as interested as ourselves in keeping up a reputation they had helped us to build.

We insisted on cloth-quality and exacted exceptional workmanship. Styles were abundant---but real old fashioned values were scarce.

Yet these makers had provided by advance orders for nearly adequate supplies for this season. With goods in stock they were able to undersell many of their rivals. Thus it happens that many prices are quite close to the old values which you must have thought were gone forever.

In every respect ours is a very remarkable showing---in point of variety, in point of real quality, in point of values which are likely to be equalled anywhere.

Keeping the Chaperon

By OSBORN JONES

(Copyright, 1918, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

William Rogers had been promised a "land army" of eight girls to help pick his peach crop, and he was considerably disgruntled when the pompous Mrs. Van Deusen arrived before his farmhouse in her spotless dove-gray limousine with its spotless gray-liveried chauffeur and spotless gray-liveried footman to tell him that the supply of labor was not forthcoming.

"Well, I can't say that I was especially stuck on the idea of having a bunch of girls working in the orchards from the first," he commented. "But you ladies who are boosting this idea talked us farmers into the idea—and besides the peach crop is bulky this year and there just isn't a man to be had now." He cast a look at but contemptuous at the two spotless gray-liveried ones and would have suggested to Mrs. Van Deusen that by way of showing her much-vaunted patriotism she might dispense with at least one of these able-bodied retainers, but Mrs. Van Deusen was not interested enough in any one's point of view but her own to be at all likely to suspect his sentiments.

She explained patiently for the second time just wherein lay the hitch. The army of eight girls had been secured. They came from the other end of the state—they were "good, strong, willing girls." Mrs. Van Deusen was sure—and the chaperon had been secured and the cook on the horizon and an order for the first week's supplies made out by the chaperon had already been delivered to Mrs. Van Deusen's provision dealers. The trouble all lay with the absence of an available house in which to shelter the girls. Mrs. Van Deusen had really worn herself quite out, and had used gallons of gasoline for some sort of neighboring country for some sort of empty house in which to lodge the girls. She had thought even of setting up cots and other temporary furnishings in one of the nearby school houses but one was positively falling to pieces and the other was already occupied by a gang of Polacks who were keeping the roads in condition for the army trucks. It must have been quite apparent to Mr. Rogers that Mrs. Van Deusen had done her best and that if his peach crop went to waste and the country was thereby deprived of that contribution to the general food supply, it would not be in the least her fault.

"Worst of it is, I counted on those girls," commented the persistent agriculturist leveling his brown eyes on Mrs. Van Deusen's flabby face. "I had a chance to get some Polacks that I could have housed in the sheds, but you'd asked me to save the work for the girls, so I let the chance slip."

"Well, you can't in the least blame me," Mrs. Van Deusen drawled.

"I wasn't blaming you—I was just wondering whether you had thought of putting up the girls yourself. You are a little down on the folks around here because they won't move out and let young girls take their houses—well, there are no more than three in your family and I guess there are twenty rooms in your house."

"Twenty-eight," corrected Mrs. Van Deusen automatically.

"I'd fetch the girls every morning and carry them back at night—"

Mrs. Van Deusen began to grow crimson at the suggestion. Perhaps it had troubled her before but she assured Mr. Rogers that it was "obviously out of the question."

"I'll let them have my own house," declared Rogers, more in defiance than as a result of a calm decision.

"Quite impossible—we are responsible for the girls and obviously we can't board them around promiscuously among the farmers."

Mr. Rogers explained that he would like to have a portable shack for himself and his family to live in, and that he would like to have a portable shack for himself and his family to live in, and that he would like to have a portable shack for himself and his family to live in.

So Mrs. Van Deusen went away feeling that she had scored a triumph, and took great pleasure in telling her associates in the patriotic work how she had secured Farmer Rogers into taking the step he had taken. By the way, she said, she had seen the shack on his way from the peach crop.

The girls were learning their task in the orchard under the guidance of Mr. Rogers' one and only "chaperon" and the chaperon, Miss Ferris, was working with the girls in the orchard.

thirty-five and did not miss an opportunity to tell her associates that she was a "plain little motherly body who would be safe anywhere," still she hovered around the farm with what seemed to Mr. Rogers to be unnecessary frequency. He could see quite clearly that she was going to take full personal credit for the bumper crop of peaches his orchard was yielding, and she did seem to forget entirely that by the arrangements he was making he was paying very full value for the amount of labor he received. She apparently forgot that the rent of his house had been a gift since he paid the girls wages that did not take into consideration their shelter. Apparently Mrs. Van Deusen wanted to make perfectly sure that Mr. Rogers kept entirely at the far end of the farm. She even stipulated to Miss Ferris that he should never take a meal in the house, "and I want to be sure," she told her, "that he shows no signs of attention to any of the girls. It is your responsibility and mine," she said condescendingly. "So please make a point to be with the girls as much as possible when he is with them. You would have a restraining influence, I am sure."

Miss Ferris did not take the trouble to remind Mrs. Van Deusen that as Mr. Rogers was staid and studious and forty and the girls were for the most part uneducated young Polack girls on their vacations from factories it was not likely that he would find much to interest him in their presence. Instead she looked very grave and assured Mrs. Van Deusen that she would keep a motherly eye on everything. And Mrs. Van Deusen made it quite clear to Mr. Rogers himself that he was not even to cross the threshold of his own house; hence arose within Mr. Rogers' breast an insatiable desire to do just that thing. The fact was, from glimpses he had secured from outside, a marvelous transformation had been wrought in the interior of that house. The Swiss curtains in the windows swaying back and forth in the breeze, the glimpses of bouquets of flowers on the tables, the airiness and spaciousness of the house as contrasted with the stuffiness and formality of it as it had been handed down to him by his old aunt and uncle five years before fairly staggered him. Apparently it had become the house he vaguely dreamed that it might become, yet Miss Ferris had brought only a few hamper of "fixings" and had made no definite change that he knew about save to move some of the furniture into the attic "to make more room." She had asked his permission to do that.

No doubt Mr. Rogers was sorely tempted; at any rate, he fell and, forgetting his promise to Mrs. Van Deusen, sneaked into that transformed house of his, one day when Miss Ferris was in the orchard with the girls, and looked around. What had been done he could not say, but that the house had been transformed into a home, he knew, and it was only by dint of firm resolve—and fear of being caught by Miss Ferris, or worse still, by Mrs. Van Deusen—that he tore himself from the charming rooms.

The experience left an impress that seemed really out of proportion to the importance of it. It seemed to William Rogers as if seeing that modified interior left him transformed as if he had gone through a great experience. It left him more with a desire to seek out the woman who had wrought the change than with a desire to revisit it again as it would be after the eight girls had returned from their day's work. So it was that a message was carried by the solitary hired man through the cook to Miss Ferris that Mr. Rogers had important business to discuss in the orchard after the girls had retired.

In a week more the girls had gone and the peaches had all been sold, and thereby contributed to the national food supply, and Mrs. Van Deusen was telling guests at dinner parties in her spacious house how successful had been her work.

"And you didn't know I was a match-maker, did you?" she would say. "There was a lonely old bachelor farmer and I just made up my mind to find a wife for him. So I worked my little plan to get her in there to transform his house and show him how much he needed a wife, and I threw them together as much as I decently could—and well, I have actually made a match. They were married yesterday and they have settled down there in the old house with the proceeds of the peach crop that I got for him."

Can Now Eat and Sleep in Comfort.

If troubled with indigestion or sleeplessness you should read what Miss Agnes Turner, Chicago, Ill., has to say: "Overwork, irregular meals and carelessness regarding the ordinary rules of health, gradually undermined it until last fall I became a wreck of my former self. I suffered from continual headache, was unable to digest my food, which seemed to lay as a dead weight on my stomach. I was very constipated and my complexion became dark, yellow and muddy as I felt. Sleeplessness was added to my misery, and I would awake as tired as when I went to sleep. I heard of Chamberlain's Tablets and found such relief after taking them that I kept up the treatment for nearly two months.
